FLAVOR  PAPER

Rock Candy was inspired by the 9,000-lb amethyst at the American Museum of Natural History in NYC. When you enter a space with this wallpaper, you feel like you've entered a giant gemstone with a million points of light and energy. We achieve this effect by layering hundreds of Amanda Wachob's tattoo ink splatters, which become sources of reflection.

Azurite is a dark and seductive colorway with a mirror-finish black Mylar shining through a matte midnight blue background. Shimmering blue sapphire color-shifting splatters add dynamism, appearing and disappearing depending on the viewing angle. High sparkle silver accents shine throughout ensuring you feel as if you are inside a geode. Pyrite and black tourmaline powders add genuine crystals, subtly enhancing your surroundings and senses.

Interdisciplinary artist Amanda Wachob, known for bridging the gap between tattooing and fine art, created hundreds of unique ink splatters that we built into a multi-layered, textural jewel of a pattern. Amanda perfectly described the Rock Candy as a "sparkly galactic metaphysical wallpaper."
