SHINJUKU

by Boone Speed

If you've ever visited The Flavor Lair then you know we're turned on by neon lights...the more the better. So, when photographer Boone Speed snapped this electrified shot of Tokyo's ever-buzzing Shinjuku district at night we were vibrating. While the design celebrates the staggering sensory overabundance experienced when weaving through the clubs, crowds, karaoke rooms, restaurants, and shops that make the city's east end the place to be, Boone brilliantly distills the booming pulse in a fashion that's less frenetic and more seductive and, some might say, soothing. Shinjuku is available on multiple grounds to suit any application and appetite however, if you really want to savor the mural's energetic Flavor, we suggest printing it on our mirrored Chrome Mylar that will make the whole vibe trip the light fantastic.

The image is a non-repeating mural and is scaled and cropped based on the provided wall dimensions.
