WALL BAIT

by Duke Riley

You know the school of thought: one man's trash is another's man's treasure? Well, Brooklyn-based artist Duke Riley really examines that trope through eye-catching, conversational work that addresses the tension between individual and collective behavior, diving deep into environmental dilemmas to connect the past and present...and pending future. Wall Bait - which features playful and provocative fishing lures created from detritus found on northeast coastal beaches - tells a tale of local pollution and global maritime effects in a fresh, thoughtful and (dare we say) alluring fashion. Not only is this Flavor a full on sensational sea of discovery, but it goes swimmingly in any and all environments. Trust us, once you lay eyes on it you'll be hooked!
